Benefits of Membership

Joining FDRA is one of the best investments you can make. Here are a few reasons why:

• FDRA publications

The Executive Bulletin, published once a month in English and Chinese, keeps you updated on cost differences across shoe sourcing countries, shoe production and trade data on US imports.

The Customs Report monitors U.S. Customs decisions affecting duties on imported footwear.

The Intellectual Property Digest and Trademark Filings reports on legal issues pertaining to the footwear industry.

The Sales Survey compares retailers’ and distributors’ sales performance on a store-for-store basis, against national and regional results of more than 20,000 shoe stores and departments (This publication is available only to members who participate in the Sales Survey.)

• Professional Development

Members receive invitations to FDRA conferences, held year-round all over the world, as well as insight into important industry events and happenings. FDRA conferences feature leading industry experts covering topics such as logistics, distribution, traffic, customs, and overseas labor practices.

Most member types are eligible to vote and hold FDRA office, the opportunities to network with colleagues and have a significant impact.

• Discounts on conference registrations

FDRA members save up to 22% on registration costs for all conferences

• Having your very own advocate in the industry

FDRA has your best interests in mind and will continue to address issues most important to your growth and success
